MASSACRE FOREIGNERS SUNDAY

BOXERS MAKE THIS ANNOUNCEMENT.

An Attack on the City May Occur at Any Time—But the Foreign Embassies There Have 650 Troops and Ten Machine Guns and Feel Safe—A Train Starts and Finds Smoking Villages all Along the Road.

By Wire to the Telegram.

Pekin, June 7—A proclamation has been placarded by the Boxers at Tien-Tsin announcing that all foreigners there will be massacred next Sunday. American consul Ragsadale, at Tein-Tsin, wires that the situation there is most menacing. An Attack on the city was threatened last night. Foreign embassies there have 650 troops and ten machine guns, and feel confident that the rebels can be be beaten off, but the loss of life is likely to be great. The British battleships Barfleur, and Terrible have arrived at Taku.

TRAINS COMPELLED TO GO BACK.

Tein Tsin, June 7 —A train which left here for the scene of the Boer troubles is now returning, as it could not get more than forty-one miles from Tien Tsin. Villages along the line of the railroad are reported in flames, and the telegraph poles are cut The Chinese troops aboard the train fired on a small party of natives, but the commander refused to proceed or detain his men.

Last night 130 British marines and bluejackets, 35 Russians, 31 Germans, 50 French, 45 Italians, arrived here. It is believed that this additional force will render Tien-Tsin safe.

BOXERS AND CATHOLICS FIGHT.

Tien-Tsin, June 7.—It is reported that a battle has occurred at Tang-Lu between Boxers and Catholics. The latter are said to have captured nine cannon and killed three Boxers.

CENSURED FOR COWARDICE.

Pekin, June 7.—A strongly worded imperial edict was issued last night, censuring the Chinese troops for cowardice and ordering Viceroy Chi-Li and General Jung-Lu to suppress the Boxers.

SOUTH ATLANTIC SQUADRON MOVING

Getting Near the Horn in Case it is Called to China.

By Wire to the Telegram.

Washington, June 7—Rear Admiral Schley, in command of the South Atlantic Squadron, has been ordered from Rio Janeiro to Montevidio.

It is suggested that this move is made to get the vessels nearer Cape Horn, if it turns out advisable to send them to China.

LABOR UNION AT GASTONIA.

Organization of Cotton Mill Operatives at That Place.

Gastonia News.

The American Federation of Labor has organized here and they claim 100 members. Mr. Bowman is president of the local club and they hold their meetings over the Elite grocery. The organization has been affected for some weeks, but it has been kept very quiet until within the past few days. The leaders claim that it has no political significance and is not antagonistic to the interest of employers. Some of the agitators have been discharged, however, on suspicion of conspiring against the interest of their employers. It is claimed that this will be made headquarters for the labor unions in this and adjoining States; and that a general organizer will be located here in the near future. The day of organized labor has arrived. If it means to break the bands of harmony between employer and employee, it is much to be regretted. If it means the social elevation of the laborer and his protection it is all right. No doubt the intention of many of the members are good, but there is always that danger that such agitation may result in evil both to the employer and employee. The most of the operatives in the Gastonia mills live better than they did before they came here and should be contented and happy. All the neighboring towns are having their organizations: Chester, Yorkville, Fort Mill, Rock Hill and other towns are following in line in the past few days.

DIDN'T SEE THE BANQUET.

The Charlotte People Had Tickets to the Seaboard Celebration but not to the Table—A Marriage.

Correspondence of the Telegram.

Charlotte, June 6.—The social event of the week takes place this evening when Mr. George N. Adams and Miss Grace Cochrane, both of Charlotte will be married in the First Presbyterian church. The church has been handsomely decorated with ferns, and other beautiful plants and presents a lovely scene. The colors of the wedding will be white and green. Dr. Howerton performs the ceremony. The bride is the second daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Cochrane and has won her way to the hearts of every one by her charming manners and sweet spirit. The groom came to Charlotte some years ago from Jacksonville, Fla. and is now connected with the Andrews Furniture Co.

Mr. and Mrs. Adams leave tonight for Boston, Mass.

It is understood that one or two Charlotte gentlemen who received invitations to the "formal exercises" in honor of the Seaboard's opening at Richmond were grievously disappointed. They, it is said, thought that the invitations included a ticket to the big $25,000 banquet but in this they were sadly mistaken as was found out when one of them tried to get just a peep into the dining hall.

The Charlotte Belting Co. has filed articles of incorporation, with a capital stock of $25,000. J. J. Hetzel, A. Burwell and R. B. Goff are the incorporators.

A NATIONAL NEGRO PARTY.

A Presidential Ticket, With Negro Candidates, Will be Placed in the Field. Some of the Names Suggested.

Philadelphia, June 6—The first steps looking to the organization of a national negro party has been taken in this city. Prominent negroes—bishops, ministers, editors and lawyers—at a meeting yesterday decided to place a presidential ticket in every State of the Union, and nominate candidates for State and congressional offices.

Names mentioned for President include ex-Judge E. J. Walker, of Boston, with P. B. S. Pinchback, ex-Lieutenant Governor of Louisiana, as running mate; Bishop W. B. Deerick, of New York, with Prof. Debers as running mate; Bishop Grant, of Illinois, with the Rev. Dr. J. P. Sampson as Vice-President; Bishop Turner, with Booker T. Washington, of Alabama, as Vice-President and Bishop Walters and T. T. Allain, of Louisiana, a Vice-President.

The platform, said H. C. C. Astwood, after the meeting, will insist upon the observance of the Constitution of the United States, the civil and political rights of every citizen without regard gard to race, color or condition; the Monroe doctrine and opposition to all monopolies, trusts and rings, and the duty of the government to control all public conveyance such as railroads, etc., and all the telegraph and telephone operations, so as not to burden the people with unnecessary taxation.

It is expected the convention will be called to meet in this city in August.

WON THREE OUT OF FOUR.

The Greensboro and Graham Tennis Clubs Play a Match Game.

Messrs. H. W. and Lee G. Wharton went to Graham yesterday, where they played the lawn tennis club of that place a match game. Messrs. Wharton won three sets out of four, the score standing 8-6, 2-6, 0-6, 3-6. The Graham team was composed of Messrs. Hal Mebane and Buck Scott. On account of the illness of Mr. Scott's wife, his place was filled by a Mr. Long, of Haw River. The game will be repeated at an early date.

The Greensboro gentlemen were royally entertained by the members of the German Club.

ARE YOU A WHITE MAN OR A NEGRO?

The Only Question in the Present Campaign, Declares Col. Waddell—A Matter of Patriotism Only—When the White Men of Wilmington Patrolled the Streets With Guns in Their Hands in Order That Peace and Quiet Might be Restored—Judge Adams' Vile Assault.

Col. A. M. Waddell, of Wilmington, who is probably more cordially hated and feared by Republican politicians than any other man in North Carolina, made one of his telling and forceful speeches in the courthouse this afternoon. The court room was filled by a crowd of eager listeners, several ladies being in the audience Col. Waddell spoke for one hour and was often interrupted by enthusiastic applause.

The speaker was introduced in a few appropriate remarks by Col. John A. Barringer, who referred to the condition of affairs in 1868, when the new constitution of North Caroliana was voted on, and when thousands of the best men in the State were deprived of the right of suffrage, at the same time the recently enfranchised negroes—slaves of those who were disfranchised—being allowed the privilege of voting. He concluded by saying, "I have the honor of intrducing to you a gentleman, fresh from the field of battle, if such it may be termed, who will tell you what white Supremacy and what negro domination in North Carolina means."

Col Waddell was greeted with tumultuous applause, and said, "I have come to state, as our Methodist friends say, my experience—my experience from observation of facts which came immediately under my eye." He alluded to the race conference recently held in Montgomery Ala., where he spoke on "Suffrage in the South." Continuing he said, "Is negro suffrage a race problem? If so, who produced it, and what is the remdey? Before the Civil War in the States of Connecticut, Ohio, Kansas, Minnesota and New York the question of negro suffrage was voted down by overwhelming majorities. In 1833 the chief justice of Connecticut declared that Indians and negroes were not citizens and the Supreme Court of the United States so held. In Illinois and Indiana negroes were not only not allowed to vote, but they were not allowed to come into the States, nor were their Southern owners allowed to bring them in and set them free. In recent years we have had a practical illustration of this hatred of the negro, when the Governor of Illinois ordered Gatlin guns turned on defenceless Southern negroes who had gone to Pana to seek employment.

"Lincoln and other great leaders of the Republican party were opposed to conferring the right of suffrage on the negroes after they had been given their liberty, and said it was dangerous to allow this question to enter reconstruction. Thad. Stevens and those of his school, who finally prevailed, openly declared their purpose in enfranchising the negroes to be to permanently establish the Republican party in power. But there was a meaner motive behind it all: It was done to humiliate the Southern people, and not because the negro was fitted for citizenship."

The speaker referred to an editorial in last Saturday's Washington Post, whose editor is a Republican and a former member of Congress from Ohio. The editorial in question stated that no State in the North would have submitted to the wrong perpetrated upon the Southern States by the fourteenth and fifteenth amendments to the Federal constitution, and added that there is now scarcely an intelligent man in the North who will not admit it was a stupendous blunder. Dr. Lyman Abbott's recent utterance in regard to manhood suffrage was also alluded to.

Col. Waddell said the time had at last come in North Carolina when all white men, and the more intelligent negroes, have presented to them in a political campaign a question of patriotism, pure and simple. He added that there is but one issue in this campaign, parties and individuals being utterly ignored, the issue being the question, "Are you a white man or a negro?"

"At the Montgomery conference I advocated the repeal of the fifteenth amendment. But whether the fifteenth amendment is repealed or not, or whether we pass the amendment in North Carolina does not so much concern my people. We have freed ourselves from negro domination, and there is not power enough in the United States army or under the planets to cause us to again submit to it." (Loud applause.)

In passing Col. Waddell took occasion to pay his respects to Spencer Adams, who went out of his way in a speech at Asheboro a day or two ago to make a mean and injustifiable attack upon him in saying that the Wilmington revolution was "deliberately concocted and carried out for the sole purpose of giving old man Waddell bread and meat." Col. Waddell said he did not wish to discuss the taste of a man who would make such an assault, but added that he considered it the greatest compliment that had ever been paid him—the assertion that the white people of a city of 25,000 inhabitants would plan and execute a revolution for the purpose of furnishing him bread and meat. By way of parenthesis, he referred to Adams' appetite for political bread and meat. He said that Adams had the appetite of a goat, and not content with the nomination for Governor, had had the nomination of a Republican candidate for Congress deferred until after the August election.

Col. Waddell told in a plain and forceful manner of the terrible condition of affairs in Wilmington previous to the revolution, when negroes, and white men without character, were in power. In the county of New Hanover there were ninety-three negro office holders, and negroes sat on every jury, refusing to convict negroes of heinous crimes. The time came when ladies dared not walk the streets of Wilmington, even during the daytime. That section of the State became a negro paradise and negroes flocked in by the hundreds. In Wilmington 100 burglaries were committed within thirty days, and not an arrest was made. Robbery and violence were daily occurences. The white people stood it, but every man carried a gun. And when the eletcion was over, and there was no danger of jeopardizing the result, the revolution came. In speaking of the revolution to a Wilmington lady, who stood on her porch with a gun in her hand, President McKinley said: "It was mighty cleverly done," referring to the action of the white people in taking charge of the affairs of the city.

In concluding, Col. Waddell said: "Do you desire this state of affairs repeated? Do you want race disorder perpetuated, or do you want quiet and good government in North Carolina? That's the only question. The white man who votes against the amendment is my enemy and the enemy of my wife and my children—an enemy to order and civilization, and should be considered as such. If a white man prefers negro domination, he should be made to transact his business and associate with them."

CONGRESS STILL IN SESSION.

Adjournment Was Prevented by the Perversity of Cannon.

By Wire to the Telegram.

Washington, June 7.—The House met at 10 o'clock this morning and the Senate at 11, to complete the session which was expected to end yesterday, but which, through the perversity of Cannon, was prolonged over night.

[The Telegram yesterday published a dispatch saying that Congress adjourned at 3 o'clock. This was of course a mistake.]

Another disagreement is formally reported on the naval appropriation bill, but the conferees have an understanding by which a compromise on the survey item may be adopted. Congrsss will surely adjourn today.

TROUBLED ABOUT KRUGER.

He May Not be Able to Embark on the Friesland.

By Wire to the Telegram.

Birmingham, June 7—A correspondent of the Post hears from an official source from The Hague that a serious question concerning President Kruger is agitating the Netherlands government. It seems that the President of the Transvaal had decided up to May 31 to take refugees on the Dutch cruiser Friesland, which is now at Lerenzo Marquez. There is reason to believe that telegraphic orders have been sent from The Hague to the commander of the Fresland regarding his future course and action.

ONLY $709,729,476.

That Insignificant Amount Represents the Appropriations Made by Present Congress.

Washington, June 6—A carefully prepared statement on the appropriations of the session was made to-night by Senator Allison, chairman of the Senate committee on appropriation, and Chairman Cannon, of the House committee on appropriations. It says: "The appropriations made by the first session of the Fifty-sixth Congress amounted to $709,729,476. This sum includes $131,247,155, estimated to be on account of, or incident to the late war with Spain, and deducting it the remaining $578,482,321 represents the ordinary appropriations for the support of the government during the session.

"After deducting the amounts estimated to have been appropriated on account or incident to the war with Spain for the ensuing, the current and last fiscal years (which cover the period since the beginning of the Spanish war), the appropriations for the five fiscal years, including the two immediately preceding the war, are as follows: 1897, $515,845,194; 1898, $528,735,079; 1899, $232,371,688; 1900, 554,278,836; 1901, $578,482,321.

ERECTION LEFT WITH SECRETARY.

If He is Not Able to Secure Armor Plate at a Reasonable Price He is Directed to Erect a Factory at the Cost of $4,000,000 —Butler Hopes to See a Factory Before He Leaves the Senate.

Special to the Telegram.

Washington, June 7.—Members of both Houses, after a night's rest broken by what came near being an all night session of both Houses of Congress, entered upon the work of the last day's session early yesterday morning. The House assembled at eight o'clock with probably not more than a dozen members present. The Senate met at ten a. m. with a fair attendance. In both Houses frequent recesses were taken for the purpose of awaiting conference reports as they were agreed to by the conferees.

The armor plate provision of the naval bill was the chief object of interest, and at one time not only threatened to delay adjournment but to defeat the entire naval appropriation bill. Finally, after repeated disagreements between the conferees upon the matter of the Tillman amendment, providing for an armour plate factory, the Senate agreed to a compromise amendment offered by Penrose, of Pennsylvania, and providing that the price of armor plate should be practically left to the Secretary of the Navy. If he is not able to secure armor plate at a "reasonable" price, then he is to have the armor plate factory erected at a cost of four millions of dollars, which is appropriated for that purpose. The compromise was vigorously objected to by the friends of an armor plate factory, who recognized in it the defeat of the proposition, and the continuance of the policy of the government in yielding to the armor plate combine. Among the speeches delivered in the Senate in opposition to the compromise were speeches by Senator Daniel, and Senator Butler. The Virginia Senator in particular, delivered an able argument against a continuance of the policy of the Navy Department regarding armor plate. Many Senators on the Democratic side of the chamber, including the Virginia and North Carolina Senators referred to, declared in private that they would prefer to see the entire naval bill fail than to have the Senate at this time yield upon the proposition of armor plate. Senator Tillman, of South Carolina, who was the chief promoter of the armor plate factory proposition was also bitter in his denunciation of the yield on the part of the Senate. Among those advocating the compromise were Senators Hanna, Elkins, Penrose, Hale of Maine, and Hawley, of Connecticut.

A number of Democratic Senators and Representatives were at the White House early yesterday morning for the purpose of bidding President McKinley farewell for the session.

Among the callers at the executive mansion was Congressman Otey, of Virginia. The Virginia representative called on business. He desired to ask the President for the appointment of F. W. Griffin, of Bedford county, Virginia, as a lieutenant in the army. The President said he would take the matter into consideration.

During the debate in the Senate yesterday on the armor plate compromise, it transpired, from a statement made by Senator Butler, that the first proposition for the erection of an armor plate factory was submitted as an amendment to the naval appropriation bill by himself five years ago. The proposition was voted down by an overwhelming majority. The idea of such a factory has grown to such an extent that one day last week the Senate agreed to the proposition with practical unamity, when it came to the contest between the two Houses. Senator Butler expressed the opinion yesterday that before he leaves the Senate on the fourth of March next, that the factory will have been authorized by Congress.

THE LYCEUM STOCK COMPANY.

Wilmington Dispatch,

It is no exaggeration, nor is it our natural pride in anything local, to say that no stronger rendition of any drama has ever been made here by any repertoire company than was made by the Lyceum Stock Company in "Not Guilty" at the Opera House last night. The play reminds me much of the romanic melodrama "The Corsican Brothers," in that the principal characters are twin brothers, played by one person. Mr. Al W. Somers, leading man and stage manager, assumed the principal roles in a vigorous attractive manner. His pleasing, resonant voice well interprets the heroic lines of the western rancher. The managements is to be congratulated upon having secured so capable an actor, whose popularity last night was attested by frequent curtain calls. Dainty Miss Izetta Jewell played the part of Annie Stoneman and in this emotional role evenly shared honors and curtain calls with Mr Somers. She is quite strong in such a part and frequently recalled the pathetic acting of Miss Effie Shannon, principal lady of "The Moth and the Flame" that appeared here the past season.

THE UNIVERSITY COMMENCEMENT.

A Brief Account of it by an Old Student Who Was Present—Dr. Venable Acceptable.

Correspondence of the Telegram.

Chapel Hill, June 6.—The University is in the midst of the commencement festivities. The exercises opened Sunday with the baccalaureate sermon by Dr. B. Strickler, of the Union Theological Seminary of Richmond, Va. The text was "But Without Faith it is Impossible to Please Him." Space forbids any attempt at synopsis; but the sermon is pronounced by many, one of the finest ever delivered here. The writer is strongly impressed with the idea that it was the finest he ever heard.

Monday evening was an inter-society debate between Messrs. Thompson and Hall of the Dialectic Society, Messrs. Cowper and Johnston of the Philanthoropic Society. The question was, "Resolved that Britain was justifiable in entering upon war against the South African Republic." The Di. men supported the affirmative and the Phi. the negative. The decision will be announced Wednesday. After the debate the Societies held their annual alumni meetings at their halls.

Tuesday was class day. The Seniors met in front of Memorial Hall and marched to the Chapel where interesting and at times very amusing exercises were held.

In the afternoon at 3:30 the Trustees met and elected Dr. F. P. Venable President of the University to succeed Dr. Alderman. Dr. Venable has been in charge of the department of chemistry for a number of years and is well known in the chemical world. He will make an acceptable president.

In the evening the representatives of the senior class contended for the Willie P. Mangum medal for oratory. The speakers and their subjects were as follows:

Peter Harden Eley, "The Symmetry of Life."

George Nelson Coffey, "Anglo-Saxon vs. Latin."

David Preston Parker, "England and America; Forces the Shape Our Coming Relations."

At an early hour today the beautiful campus was dotted with those who desired to witness the sending out into the world of another body of young and hopeful graduates. Every type of humanity had its representative, from the sun-burned country beaux with his fair belle attired in red, to the dignified trustees; all equally aware that the University belonged to the State and they could act as they wished.

Promptly at 10:30 a. m. the academic procession began its march around the quadrangle in the center of the campus, in the following order, headed by the Richmond band: The senior class, President Alderman with the chairman of the board of trustees, the trustees, members of the classes of '80 '90 and '95; the faculty, under-graduates and friends. The procession stopped at Memorial Hall, where the following exercises of the day were held

The exercises were opened with prayer by Rev. Robert E. Caldwell, after which Dr. Alderman made an address of welcome and then introduced the first speaker. Dr. Kemp B. Battle, on the "Struggle and Study of the Rebirth of the University." Dr. Battle then told of the many difficulties that were surmounted and the many hardships gone through by those noble and loyal heroes to whom we are indebted for the re-establishment and great success of the "New University."

Ex-president of the University, Dr Geo. T. Winston, next spoke on "The First Faculty, Its Work and Its Opportunity," telling of excellent work of the faculty as individuals, and as a body, in steadily building up the University by remarkable work in the different departments, and in the constant addition of new departments, as necessity called for them.

Dr. E. A. Aldermen next spoke on "The University, its Work and its Needs."

Mr. W. J. Peele then spoke, taking as his subject, "Pen Pictures of the Times of 1875." Mr. Peel was followed by Rev. J. C. Troy, giving the "Statistical History of the Men of '75." The exercises wore then suspended until 4 p. m.

At the afternoon exercises the new and handsome Carr building, the gift of one of the University's most loyal sons, Col. Julian S. Carr, was presented to the University by Dr. R. H. Battle, and accepted in behalf of the trustees by Col. W. H. S. Burgwyn.

The following medals and prizes were awarded by President Alderman: The Holt medal, Marcia Louise Lathan; the Hume medal, Marcia Louise Lathan; the Hill prize, Jasper Sidney Atkinson; the Greek prize, William McLelland Steven; the Worth prize, Charles Grandison Rose; the Early English Text Society prize, Henry Evan Davis Wilson; the James B. Lloyd prize, Needham Erastus Ward; the President's prize, D. S. Thompson and J. K. Hall; the Mangum medal, D. P. Parker.

The ball occurs tonight.

MINISTER FELL BY POKER.

Streak of Luck Struck by a Young Crusader.

He was new in the city. When he first arrived strangers who saw him gambled that he was either a professional poker player or a minister. They could not tell which. He was not known personally to the men who frequented the gambling houses, and not much notice was taken of him when, in search of material for his sermon, he walked in alone one Monday night and glanced nervously around a room where a dozen men were playing different games. It seemed familiar to him for in his younger and wilder days he had gambled himself. The manager spied him and put him down at once as a slick professional who was there on a tiger-bucking expedition. He spoke to him, and learned his name.

"Dawson," he repeated. "Say, are you old Bill Dawson who used to run the faro bank in Memphis when I was there ten years ago? No? Well you are welcome, for you look like the dead game article and if you can beat me why then all well and good."

Mr. Dawson did not know how to explain. He had an inkling that he would be sent away if he said he was Dawson the minister, so he said nothing. He walked about aimlessly. The proprietor wanted to see him play. Dawson had not looked for anything like this and hesitated. The proprietor pushed him. There was a two dollar game, he said, just starting in the next room and they needed another player. The rattling of the chips and the calls of the gamblers, with the big money in sight, dazed Dawson and he allowed himself to be pushed into the poker room. Before he really knew what was up the proprietor had shoved him to a chair.

"Here's a good player, boys," he said, "and I want to see what he can do. He is Mr. Dawson and he is all right."

Of course the players were glad to see Mr. Dawson, but gladder to see the color of his money.

"You look like you could deal the cards in the pulpit," said a big man at the table, and Dawson colored. He laughed it away. The proprietor came up and Dawson, like a man in a dream, took out some money and bought a stack of chips.

"Seems as if the new player is dopy," commented a hitherto silent player, and Dawson braced himself. He saw that he was in for it and he had to play his way out. If he could lose, he thought, and then get away nobody would suspect that he was the parson, and all would be serene.

The game opened slow. There were no good hands running and the betting was quiet, so Dawson had more time to think. He was the last man to deal and he took the cards nervously, but the feel of the pasteboards seemed to give him more confidence in himself and he shuffled them like a veteran. Everything was a jack pot and the first man to say opened for a couple of dollars. Two others stayed, a third raised and Dawson came in. There was more betting. When cards were called the opener stood pat, another man wanted two cards, another three and Dawson took one. He had drawn to aces and eights, the gambler's hand, and when he picked up the fifth card he saw the ace of spades. The betting got lively. The opener, with a flush, considered it good and bet accordingly. Dawson, who by that time, felt the return of his old-time sporting blood, came on with a raise which paralyzed some of the more timid players and they dropped out. The dealer stuck and sent back another raise which was met and returned. Dawson was not going to cover and it was left to the opener to call.

"That's good," the opener said quietly, when Dawson announced that he had a full hand, and so the big pot, which was rich, was moved over to the parson's corner.

By this time the minister forgot his cloth and his errand to the place and he played with all his old-time enthusiasm. The cards ran well; it was just such a streak of luck as occasionally is found with a newcomer. The minister took in pot after pot. Once there was a good pot which had been sweetened time and again, and when one of the players said he would open it, Dawson found that he did not have a pair even to go in with. He had an ace, a jack, a seven, a trey and a deuce. He wanted to go in and try for the pot. He could well afford to lose a few. He started to draw to the ace, but reconsidered and held up the seven because he considered it lucky. Well, when he picked up his four cards, glanced at them without moving a feature and began raising the big bets, the other players put him down as a wonderful bluffer and came back at him hot and fast. When the big man finally called, the gambling parson quietly laid down four sevens and raked in the pot. He had beaten four fours. That was a sample of his luck.

I sa Quack Doctor More Dangerous than a Quack Plumber?

When you are sick why is it that you do not peddle out the job of dosing you, to the lowest bidder? You would get it done much cheaper than your family physician would do it, but some QUACK DOCTOR would get the job. Your plumbing is of vital importance and you can no more afford to have your plumbing done by a quack plumber than to call in a quack doctor when sick.

Give us your work and it will be done properly and price will be reasonable.

At daylight Dawson cashed in $1,670 from the night's game. Just as he had shoved the money into his clothes a man came out from the room where the faro banking had been open, and recognized the minister.

"Why, Mr. Dawson," he said, "what are you doing here?"

Dawson tried to explain. There was a wrangle. Finally Dawson explained the whole thing. To make a long story short Dawson packed his things and left the town at noon. Soon afterward I heard of him plunging high in Denver, and from that time on he turned in to be a professional gambler.

Let go or die. That's the alternative of the shipwrecked man with the money bags. If there was only some one to throw him a life preserver, he might save both life and money. Without help it is let go or die. A great many people have a like alternative before them. Business men come to a point where the doctor tells them that they must "let go or die." Probably he advised a sea voyage or mountain air. There's an obstinate cough that won't be shaken off. The lungs are weak and perhaps bleeding. There is emaciation and other symptoms of disease, which if unskillfully or improperly treated terminate in consumption.

Thousands of men and women in a like condition have found complete healing by the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It purifies the blood. It carries off from the system all refuse and poisonous matter. It gives the infected organs the strength to throw off disease.

"I was taken sick and felt so stupid I could hardly go about," writes Miss Mary Eskew, of Given, Jackson Co., W. Va. "I had smothering spells. I went to our best physicians and they doctored me all one summer. I kept growing worse and got so weak I could hardly go about. The two doctors I had said I had lung trouble. I had an awful cough, and one day my aunt told me of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. I sent and got a bottle of both kinds—the 'Golden Medical Discovery' and 'Favorite Prescription.' When I had taken that it helped me so much I sent and got more. I have taken of both medicines altogether, ten bottles. Now my lungs do not hurt me, and I don't have any cough. I am stout now and as well as ever in my life."

RHEUMATISM

Distorts Muscles, Shatters Nerves, Stiffens Joints.

Is due to an acid poison which gains access to the blood through failure of the proper organs to carry off and keep the system clear of all morbid, effete matter. This poison through the general circulation is deposited in the joints, muscles and nerves, causing the most intense pain.

Rheumatism may attack with such suddenness and severity as to make within a few days a healthy, active person helpless and bed-ridden, with distorted limbs and shattered nerves; or it may be slow in developing, with slight wandering pains, just severe enough to make one feel uncomfortable; the tendency in such cases is to grow worse, and finally become chronic.

Like other blood diseases, Rheumatism is often inherited, and exposure to damp or cold, want of proper food, insufficient clothing, or anything calculated to impair the health, will frequently cause it to develop in early life, but more often not until middle age or later. In whatever form, whether acute or chronic, acquired or inherited, Rheumatism is Strictly a Blood Disease, and no liniment or other external treatment can reach the trouble. Neither do the preparations of potash and mercury, and the various mineral salts, which the doctors always prescribe, cure Rheumatism, but ruin the digestion and break down the constitution.

A remedy which builds up the general health and at the same time rids the system of the poison is the only safe and certain cure for Rheumatism. S. S. S., made of roots, herbs and barks of wonderful solvent, purifying properties, attacks the disease in the right way, and in the right place—the blood—and quickly neutralizes the acid and dissolves all poisonous deposits, stimulates and reinforces the overworked, worn-out organs, and clears the system of all unhealthy accumulations. S. S. S. cures permanently and thoroughly, and keeps the blood in a pure, healthy state.

Mr. J. O. Malley, 123 W. 15th Street, Indianapolis, Ind., for eighteen months was so terribly afflicted with Rheumatism he was unable to feed or dress himself. Doctors said his case was hopeless. He had tried fifty-two prescriptions that friends had given him, without the slightest relief. A few bottles of S. S. S. cured him permanently, and he has never had a rheumatic pain since. This was five years ago.

We will send free our special book on Rheumatism, which should be in the hands of every sufferer from this torturing disease. Our physicians have made blood and skin diseases a life study, and will give you any information or advice wanted, so write them fully and freely about your case. We make no charge whatever for this service. Address, SWIFT SPECIFIC CO., Atlanta, Ga.

THURSDAY, JUNE 7, 1900.

THE CAREER OF DR. CLEVELAND.

The career of Dr. S. Grover Cleveland presents a striking example for the emulation of American youth--that youth which is supposed to ever have its weather eye open for suitable examples for emulation. The Doctor's life may well be called checkered, but without the implication that there are many regretful spots in it. If it were fashionable now to have excutcheons, Doctor Cleveland's would shine with a fair and uniform brightness.

These remarks are suggested by a couple of late articles from the period-producing pen of the subject. One of them was written on "The Independence of the Executive." Barring some slight disagreement about the good taste of this article, coming from one who was himself so eminent an example of the Independence of the Executive, we are ready to remark that it was, like most of the Doctor's literary efforts, worthy of perusal. It may be remarked in passing, that the author, before he became a L.L. D., and was just plain Grover Cleveland, by the grace of God and the votes of his admiring fellow citizens, President of these United States, gave some examples in the independency of the executive, to which the present tenant of the White House could not be pushed by all the thumbscrews that ever existed. The other article is "Does Education Pay?" The vicious New York Sun, ever on the look out for some opportunity to nag Dr. Cleveland, says that the syntax of this article suggests the thought that education might have paid in certain instances.

In the first place, the subject before us was the sole architect and builder of his own structure. He drew the plans, cut the logs, hauled them to the saw mill, dressed the lumber and drove the nails, and boarded himself all the time the work was in progress, too. And after the work has all been completed, who can blame him for wishing to put some fancy touches here and there on the structure, which, though plain, is mighty solid and enduring? And who can blame him for showing a little pardonable pride in it? By George, as an American and a dweller in the land of equality and opportunity, we are proud of it ourself. It is too good an example of what an unbounded horizon and a great sweep of vision is worth to mankind, not to be proud of. We believe we should be odd enough to be proud of it did we not agree with a single idea that this self-architect has stood for.

The people of Buffalo needed a mayor who would be mayor; they found him in the person of Grover Cleveland, Esq. The people of Erie county needed a sheriff once that would be a sheriff right; they found him in the person of Mayor Grover Cleveland. The great state of New York needed a governor, and found him in the person of Sheriff Cleveland, The Democratic party three times needed a candidate for president that could carry the country, and twice it found him in the person of Grover Cleveland. Always the United States needs a man for president that has three things, statesmanship, courage and patriotism. Twice they found such an one in the person of our subject. What matter if the Democratic party decided that it didn't want to stand by such a man; it was the worse for the party, not for him. But last of all, and the most curious, is that a great institution of learning, sober and staid, found in this same man a worthy recipient of an honorary title, and a suitable man to stand in its lecture halls. And now the plain old structure which the Sheriff erected has taken on a fresh coat of paint, has been brushed out a little, had some fresh wall papering done, and is a fine old-new house with all modern conveniences. It is very strange, but not out of place, this making over and adding to the first architectural plans of the boy Cleveland, but it is more strange that he presides as easily and naturally in the new as in the old structure, and handles his Doctor's degree as well as he did his sheriff's saddle-bags. All very strange, but very grand. Only America could do it.

TIME TO STOP FOOLISHNESS.

The Telegram is informed that there is being circulated over the county a report which is just now calculated to do much harm to the Democratic party, for the simple reason that it puts the official head of the party in a false position, and consequently puts the whole party in that position. If the official head of the party is tainted the party itself bears the same taint. The report is that Mr. Scales, the chairman of the county Executive Committee, was elected in some irregular way, the intimation being that some kind of snap action was taken by somebody, at present unknown. It is surprising that any such report could have been originated at all, and still more surprising that it should have been circulated by Democrats.

The election in question was made strictly according to the plan of party organization adopted by the State Executive Committee, and due notice was given at every step. The precinct meetings were called and held March 31, at which meeting the several precinct chairmen were elected. The plan of organization says:

The chairman of the several precinct committees shall compose the county executive committee, which shall meet at the same time and place as the county convention first held in each election year, and elect a chairman of said county committee, who need not be a member of the committee, and he shall preside at all meetings of said committee, and shall hold his place until his successor is elected. A majority of said precinct chairmen, in person or by proxy, shall constitute a quorum.

This plan was carried out to the letter. The first county convention met April 7, on which day the county executive committee, composed of the precinct chairmen, met, a majority being present, and reelected Mr. A. M. Scales chairman. And more than that, when the committee met again a few days ago, members of it were indignant that the report referred to had been scattered. It was not only a reflection upon the chairman, but upon the committee, and for that reason, the committee made an official endorsement of what had been done by the former meeting. At this meeting there were two thirds or more of the committee present in person. This is in no sense a defense of Mr. Scales or the committee, they need none; it is a mere statement of facts for the benefit of Democrats who may not be able to call to mind party organization.

We do not pass judgment on the Democracy of any one, but we are compelled to say that the Democrat who will go about spreading such statements, puts himself in a mighty bad position; he may be charged with desiring to see the party defeated rather than to have his faction submit to the will of the party majority. It is quite the vogue now to tell how long one has been a Democrat and how many times he has voted the ticket. That may be interesting ancient history but it is not relevant to the subject in hand. The question now is what is one willing to do now for his party, and is he willing to stand by it and fight for it, even if it happens to be against his personal whim on some secondary subject. If he is, he is a loyal Democrat this year, if he is not willing thus to be governed by the majority, he is not this year a loyal Democrat; though he may have been last year. It is now time to stop such smallness as is shown in the circulation of this report; time to stop the foolishness of standing around and predicting that the county will go Republican this year; time to cease the innumerable mouthings that tend only to keep Democrats apart. The final fight is now too near at hand for such things to be indulged in, though they may be gratifying to personal feelings. It is Democracy and white supremacy this year. He that is not for it, even at the sacrifice of personal feeling, is against it.

The New York papers report a great meeting of negroes in Brooklyn Sunday, for the purpose of celebrating ing the 100th birthday of John Brown. One of the speakers, an editor of an influential paper, said:

"There is now 10,000,000 of us, with 2,000,000 fighting men, and in some great crisis in this country these negroes will get at the throats of the white men who have wronged and outraged their citizenship."

The Telegram has said that it pitied the negro. It does for this very reason, that they are so weak as to listen to such talk as this. What kind of citizenship is it that is lying in wait for some crisis in order that it may "go at the throats" of another class of citizens? The southern negroes do not feel this way, and the pity is that they are so weak as to tolerate such self constituted leaders, the result of whose devilishness falls on them.

A FATAL DRINK OF WHISKEY.

He Stood up in a Boat to Take a Drink and a Sudden Lurch Threw Him Overboard.

Fishkill Landing Dispatch.

Michael Sideck, a Hungarian, employed on O'Brien's brick yard, was drowned in the Hudson river tonight while taking a drink of whiskey from a jug, which he had in a row boat, while crossing the river. Sideck and three companions left the brick yard at about dark to row to Newburgh. There they purchased a gallon jug and filled it with whiskey. When about the middle of the river, Sideck stood up and ran his arm through the handle of the jug and started to take a drink. A sudden lurch of the boat threw him backward into the river and he never rose to the surface again.

SIGNS OF SPRING.

When springtime reigns the "season" wanes—
We weary are of footlight fads,
We watch the growing of the grass
And put away the playhouse "ads."
Let young D'Artagnan fume and fight,
Let Cyrano woo maid and Mars,
We shall go out into the night,
Lit by the everlasting stars.

Now east and west and north and south,
Out come the graceful steeds of steel,
A flight a flash—perhaps a crash—
And, lo! the world is all a-wheel.
Over the hills and far away
A million riders seem to ply.
Nature receives her friends to-day,
And few there are to pass her by.

A trumpet blare, a spangle flare,
A brazen burst of horns and drums—
A mad excitement everywhere—
And, lo! the wondrous circus comes!
Oh, glittering adjunct of the spring,
Though every nation gives you praise
Your splendors do not seem to bring
The joy that thrilled our childish days!

Come out and walk, come out and run,
Come out and ride and scream and shout—
Come out and saunter in the sun.
If you do nothing else—come out.
There is a solace in the spring—
If you will walk in nature's way
She'll gladly show you everthing,
And there will be no bill to pay!

AUNT CHARETTE.

They had raided Aunt Charette. In answer to repeated complaints from the respectable element in Fort Kent the officers had come up there and had swooped down on the liquor dealers. And chief among the liquor dealers was Aunt Charette. In fact, she was the local wholesaler. She was thrifty, was Aunt Charette. She had credit. She could roll $500 worth of "morson," or white rum, at one time. The smaller dealers up and down the St. John from St. Francis to Frenchville found it more convenient to buy of her.

Gold beads and a black silk dress o' Sunday did Aunt Charette wear. Broad was she, with amplitude of waist and scarcity of lap. She sat all day long in her little sitting room and interrupted her knitting only long enough to answer calls at the door. Sometimes the caller would be a man from Connor with gray wool trousers and peaked cap. Another would be a Frenchville citizen with empty jugs under the seat of his narrow buckboard.

They told her whether they wanted morson or cherry rum or "wheesk" or alcohol. Then Aunt Charette went out in the little dark leanto shed and rattled the funnel and clinked the jugs, and at last came pudging back with a broad smile between her big earrings.

And she always knew whether to give or refuse credit. All sorts of queer accounts had she—scattered all over the countryside.

Uncle Charette was a very silent partner in the firm. He used to tell the priest that he had tried and tried to induce Aunt Charette to give up the business of selling liquor. Still Uncle Charette had discovered years before that he would not have to go into the woods winters any more; that there was always spare change for him to buy his tobacco; that he was never asked to earn any money for the groceries. Twice a year Aunt Charette purchased new wool trousers of Canadian gray. As for his long-tailed coat, Uncle Charette seemed unable to wear that out for the reason that the most of the time he went about in his shirt sleeves.

And though Uncle Charette never went out into the dark leanto, still on a corner of the kitchen shelf stood a little earthen jug that Aunt Charette never allowed to be less than half full of brandy. She had to pour some into it from the keg every day. Uncle Charette declared that it helped his rheumatism.

When the officers came riding up to the door on a big sled drawn by two horses and ran in without knocking, Aunt Charette clung to the arms of her chair.

"Le bon Dieu! W'at ees eet?" she cried.

"Aunt Charette, you've been complained against," said the local deputy sheriff, "and we've got to take what stuff you've got on the premises. I suppose it's all in the leanto, as usual?"

When the discovery is made in prohibition Maine that there is liquor selling in a community the local deputy is usually well acquainted with the location of all the liquor deposits.

"W'at!" screamed Aunt Charette, but in sorrow, not in anger. "W'at! tak' ma leetle stock? Why, m'sieu, yo' can't do nottains tak dat. I geet ma pairmeer from dat man—w'at yo' call heem, de county attornee. Here—here—here it be," and with trembling hand she poked under the deputy's nose the receipt showing that she had paid a fine at the last term of court. She insisted that it was a permit to sell liquor. Aunt Charette believed that it was.

"I hain't got anything to do with that," said the deputy. "I've got a search warrant, and I'm ordered to search and seize."

He ducked past and started for the leanto. And Aunt Charette, her keys jangling, her hands upraised, her tongue flying like a shuttle, followed on his heels. Uncle Charette sat wholly silent in a corner. The only sign of emotion he displayed was to blink every thirty seconds. So absolutely impassive was he that I, unseen, took his photograph in a twenty seconds' exposure and there wasn't a smooch on the negative.

Aunt Charette protested against opening the door. The deputy, with one blow of his boot, shattered the lock. Then he and his men rolled out the barrels and the kegs and the demijohns. Aunt Charette, as they laid their hands on each article, screamed, "Ah, mon Dieu! Non! non! You've taken enough! Leeve dat wan!—leeve dat wan!"

But the officers were inexorable. They rolled everything out. They had to send for another sled. There were loads for two heavy teams. The last man to go out was the deputy with a jug, the last he could find. He had dug out the remotest corner. As he went through the kitchen his eyes fell on the jug on the shelf. He took it down and smelled of it.

"Ah, offeecaire! offeecaire!" she wailed, "dat be just a little sup of brandy for poor M'sieu Charette, dat poor man dat set dere. Don' tak' dat!"

Uncle Charette, pulling at his pipe, only blinked an extra time or so.

"Eef yo' tak' dat, offeecaire, w'at da poor man do for hees dreenk to-morrow mornin'? Please leeve dat." The officer could appreciate the situation. He left it.

Aunt Charette stood at the door until the teams disappeared in the dusk far down the street.

A rough inventory at the storehouse that evening indicated that Aunt Charette had $700 worth of liquor in stock.

* * * * * *

The officers left word that Aunt Charette must be at the office of the local trial justice the next forenoon at 9.

At 8 o'clock Uncle Charette eased her down out of the old-fashioned chaise onto the platform before the justice's office. It was a slow and tedious job, for Aunt Charette's avoirdupois is disposed in most unwieldy fashion. She was arrayed in her best black dress. Uncle Charette—this being a state occasion—had on his long-tailed black coat. The faces of both were perfectly expressionless. Evidently Aunt Charette had exhausted all her emotion the afternoon before.

They sat side by side in the justice's office mute, never moving, never even turning their heads while all the other cases of seizure were disposed of.

It had been a wholesale raid through the village. All the men and women who had been raided owed money to Aunt Charette. All gave bonds to appear at the higher court. All went away.

"Well, Mrs. Charette," said the justice, "you are charged with single sale, with nuisance and keeping a tippling house. Have you any lawyer or any defense to put in?"

To the surprise of all Uncle Charette who had been all these years the silent partner in this firm, was the one to speak.

"She have no lawyer," said he; "she have notins to say."

"Well, I shall have to impose fines amounting to about $500 on her," said the justice. Aunt Charette gasped—that was all. Uncle Charette said nothing.

"You appeal, don't you?" asked the justice. "You know you can appeal and give bonds and then your wife won't have to go to jail. You will also have time to get money collected to pay the fine."

"We don't do nottins 'tall 'bout dat t'ing," said Uncle Charette doggedly.

"What, you don't mean to say that you are going to let your wife go down to jail?" cried the justice. "If she doesn't pay or give bonds she'll have to go to jail and await the sitting of the court. That is two months off. Then she will have still more time to serve in carrying out her sentence. She is likely to stay there the most of a year. Aunt Charette has been a good wife to you, Uncle Charett. Your home place stands in your name. All you have to do is to sign her bonds and then she can stay here till court sits. And by that time you will have a chance to talk this thing over with your friends. I'll make out the bond."

"No," declared Uncle Charette. "Ef yo' want to tak' her down to jail she go. She all dressed up. She go any time."

* * * * * *

Now, you and I and all the rest of us know that this ins't the way the prohibition statute usually operates—and it isn't the way the authorities like to have it operate. And then, too, here was an old woman, who had never been away from her home in all her life, who had grown-up children, who had knitted in that little kitchen there in the village of Fort Kent and had looked out through her little window at the passers until she had become one of the local landmarks. There wasn't a person in the illage who wanted to see her go down to Houlton in that manner.

But there she and Uncle Charette sat without looking at each other. Every one knew that Aunt Charette had money enough to pay the fine. Uncle Charette's name on the bond would liberate her. Finally he said:

"She t'ink she batter go. She'll be all r-r-at. I'll kip house till she eom' back. We've talk 'bout dat t'ing som', and we t'ink dat p'raps she batter go down dere."

Well, under those circumstances the law had to take its course. The old couple shook hands on the platform outside the door. The husband got into the crazy chaise and rode away behind the fuzzy old white horse. The deputy sheriff, after great effort, boosted Aunt Charette in over the side of his piano-box buggy and started on the sixty-mile drive to Caribou, there to take the train for Houlton.—Lewiston Journal.

BLACK WALNUT GOES ABROAD.

States Along the Mississippi Are Searched for Fine Trees.

The great size often reached by the black walnut, the richness of the dark brown wood, the unique beauty of the grain sometimes found in burls, knots, feathers and in the curl of the roots, all conspire to make this the most choice and high-priced of our native woods.

Twenty-five years ago walnut was extensively used in the manufacture of fine furniture and finishings in this country, but manufacturers adroitly drew attention to the beauty of darkly stained quartered oak, and the use of the rarer wood has greatly declined.

But all this time the search for the fine black walnut logs has gone on systematically, though quietly, the trade attracting little attention, though the volume of lumber handled has been large.

The great source of supply has been the central portions of the Mississippi valley. The walnut is at home in the rich alluvial bottom lands of the western streams and in the stony limestone soils of the hills and mountains, and in such localities the buyers have left few trees unsurveyed.

Throughout eastern Kansas, Missouri and Arkansas, as well as the States along the Ohio and its tributaries, may be seen a few logs at this little station, a car or two at that, with carefully hewn sides and painted ends, ready for the market.

If you ask where this market is you will find that the great bulk of this rare lumber goes to Europe.

While we have been led into an enthusiastic admiration for fine oak, stained according to the degrees of antiquity it is supposed to represent, our European cousins have been paying fancy prices for the rich black walnut that we have allowed to go "out of the fashion."—Berea Quarterly.

The Stamp Question.

Meaning that she should purchase a few stamps ahead and not be bothering the druggist every day in the year, he said:

"Don't you know that a druggist doesn't like to sell stamps in that way?"

"Is it possible he is afraid I won't pay him?" she questioned spiritedly.

"Pay him?" he demanded. "What do you mean?"

"Why, I purchased four yesterday, and as I forgot my purse I asked him to charge them—the mean thing."

"Have mercy!" he cried. "Woman, spare me any more!"—Indianapolis Sun.

A Question of Dignity.

"What makes you keep forever talking about humidity?" asked the irritable man. "You've used the word over and over again."

"I know it. You don't think I'd put off such a wonderful specimen of weather with a monosyllable like 'hot,' do you?"—Washington Star.

LOOK OUT FOR BARGAINS!

In order to make some changes in the store which will give more room to display this large assorted stock of fine furniture will for 30 days sell goods at prices never heard of before.

Now is the time to buy and save money.

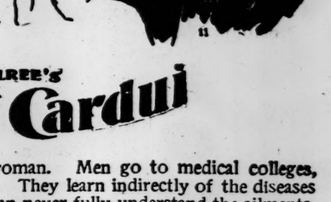
WINE OF CARDUI

Woman Knows Woman.

ZURICH, KAN., Jan. 31.
I used Wine of Cardui for nervousness and weakness in the womb. After taking one bottle I was well again. I am a midwife and always recommend Wine of Cardui to my lady friends during pregnancy and after birth as a tonic. Every lady who takes it finds that it does even more than is claimed for it.
MRS. V. M. BOISVERT.



McELREE'S
Wine of Cardui

Nobody knows woman like woman. Men go to medical colleges, study books and listen to lectures. They learn indirectly of the diseases of women, but they are men and can never fully understand the ailments, the sufferings, the agonies of mothers, wives and sisters. A woman knows. Mrs. Boisvert knows. She has passed through the trials and tribulations of her sex. She has been near by when her sisters suffered. She has seen them relieved and cured with Wine of Cardui. Is it any wonder she recommends it? Is it any wonder that thousands of other women recommend it. They know. They have actual experience to prompt them. They spread the tidings from mouth to mouth, telling how Wine of Cardui helps young girls, helps the weak of all ages, helps and cures all womanly ills.

A FIGHT WITH INSURGENTS.

Two Dead and Several Wounded Left on the Field.

Dave Gilmer, colored, who went from Greensboro to the Philippines to take an appointment as first Lieutenant in the Forty-ninth Infantry, sends the Telegram a copy of the Aparri News, published at Aparri, Luzon Island, containing an account of a small fight with a band of insurgents.

A detachment of 16 negroes from the Forty-ninth Infantry, under the command of Lieutenant Gilmer, met and fought a small body of native insurgents, running them from the field Two of the insurgents were killed and several wounded. Several rifles and a lot of ammunition were captured.

All Should Take Part.

Please notice the names and duties of the Battle Ground committees for the Fourth of July celebration as they appear in this paper. We especially request our hotels to take a part of the honored guests free and they will be paid for the balance. It is a common duty and pleasure of our citizens to recognize this obligation. Remember that others have given time and work free to afford our people a happy and well spent day and that they will be richly repaid not only in hearing Gen. Boyton's speech, but it will bring business to our city and publish us abroad. Let the occasion be honorable to us all.

COMMITTEE,

ON A SHOESTRING.

How a Democratic Leader Was Elected to Congress.

Congressman William Sulzer, of New York City, since he ran for Assembly a number of years ago on a shoestring, and defeated the regular Tammany nominee, has been a great favorite with Richard Croker, and, in fact, is looked upon as his darling light-haired boy. Mr. Sulzer is now serving his third term in Congress, and is counted one of the leaders on the Democratic side of the House.

He is also a member of the New York Press Club. And thereby hangs a tale.

A number of years ago two of his friends employed on a paper were discharged, and they appealed to Mr. Sulzer, then Speaker of the Assembly, to have him use his influence to get them work on another paper.

"All right," said Sulzer. "Start a daily paper of your own, and I'll help you."

And they did.

The paper from the jump carried a large line of advertising, including city work, and its circulation ran up to nearly 60,000 at a bound.

After the withdrawal of Mr. Sulzer, the paper was consolidated with the New York Mercury—now the Daily Telegraph.

Congressman Sulzer remains a great and good friend of the newspaper boys, and holds his membership in the Press Club. He is a forceful and eloquent speaker and an excellent presiding officer.

Justice.

"Judge, they are accusing you of favoring your friends and being too severe on your enemies when you get a chance at them."

"Oh, well, it will average up all right in the long run, so justice in the abstract is none the loser."—Indianapolis Journal.

That New England Conscience.

I have heard it denied that small New England children have the New England conscience, but some things I have seen and heard incline me to think that they often have it, says a writer in the Boston Transcript. A story that was told me the other day points that way. One day the mother of a ten-year old boy gave him two slices of buttered bread, telling him to give one of them to his little sister. He carried out the order. That night, when he went to bed, he was evidently disturbed in his mind and remorseful about something, and his mother questioned him in a way to bring out the truth. "I—I wasn't nice to Peggy about that bread and butter," he owned. "Why," asked his mother, "did you take the bigger piece?" "No," he answered, "hers was a little bigger than my piece was, but mine was a good deal butterer!"—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Yes, August Flower still has the largest sale of any medicine in the civilized world. Your mothers and grandmothers never thought of using anything else for indigestion or biliousness. Doctors were scarce, and they seldom heard of appendicitis, nervous prostration or heart failure, etc. They used August Flower to clean out the system and stop fermentation of undigested food, regulate the action of the liver, stimulate the nervous and organic action of the system, and that is all they took when feeling dull and bad with headaches and othaches. You only need a few doses of Green's August Flower, in liquid form, to moke you satisfied there is nothing serious the matter with you. For sale by Grissom & Fordham.

CATARRH CAN BE CURED BY

Johnston's Sarsaparilla

QUART BOTTLES.

"DANGER IN THE EARTH AND AIR; DANGER EVERYWHERE."

A Wise and Venerable Doctor Talks about Advanced Science.

In a leading hotel, in a great city, a famous and aged physician was conversing. Listening to his wise and sententious discourse, were a group of well dressed men, evidently lawyers, business men and commercial travelers.

My firm belief, is "that medical science is certain yet to show that all diseases without exception are caused by invisible germs which are living organisms. Here is the germ of that terrible disease diphtheria. Here is the bacillus of typhoid fever; and here is the still more dreadful bacillus of tubercle which causes that most destructive of all diseases, consumption. This of that very common and supposed incurable disease, catarrh."

"I wish, Doctor," said the traveling man, "that you would tell us about catarrh. I have had it for years, and I am thoroughly discouraged."

The Doctor answered. "Catarrh, like diphtheria, consumption, typhoid fever, and a host of other diseases, is the result of a microbe invading the blood and attacking specially the mucous membrane. This foul and most disgusting disease is especially prevalent in the United States and it is rare to meet one who is not, or has not been troubled more or less with it. How often is he or she obliged to remain at home from pleasant entertainments, deprive themselves of many intellectual treats, from fear of the disagreeable odor arising from catarrhal affections. In its worst phase, the patient becomes loathsome both to himself and his friends.

"I believe," continued this great physician, "that the true way to heal catarrh is to medicate the blood. This can be done only by powerful alteratives which act as blood purifiers."

Betsy A. Marett, of Manistee, Manistee Co., Mich., writes:

Dear Sirs:—For ten years I was a sufferer from general debility and chronic catarrh. My face was pale as death. I was weak and short of breath. I could hardly walk, I was so dizzy and had a ringing in my head all the time. My hands and feet were always cold. My appetite was very poor. On getting up in the morning, my head swam so I was often obliged to lie down again. I had awful pains in the small of my back. I had a continual feeling of tiredness. My muscular power was almost entirely gone, and I couldn't go half a dozen steps without stopping to rest, and often that much exercise caused me to have a pain in my side. It seemed as though the blood had left my veins. The doctors said my blood had all turned to water. I had given up all hope of ever getting well. I tried the best physicians in the state, but failed to get any relief. My husband got me a bottle of Johnston's Sarsaparilla. I took it, and then I bought another. When these had been used, I was somewhat improved in health. I continued its use, and felt I was growing stronger; my sleep was refreshing, and it seemed as if I could feel new blood moving through my veins. I kept on taking it, and now consider myself a well and rugged woman. I work all the time, and am happy. I am positive that the Sarsaparilla saved my life. The sick headaches I have had since childhood, have disappeared, and my catarrh has almost entirely left me. I cannot be too thankful for what Johnston's Sarsaparilla has done for me. I recommend all women who have sick headaches to use your Sarsaparilla.
